ASN Elects Four Members

Doctor Egloff Addresses Chemistry Club Societies

Dr. Gustav Egloff, president of the American Institute of Chemists and internationally known specialist in the field of hydrocarbons, delivered a lecture in the Science building here on the night of Thursday, October 28.

His talk outlined the crude oil situation in the U. S. at the present time, the outlook for the future, and the developments being made in the field of hydrocarbons in the war.

The occasion of the address was the joint meeting of the newly organized Baltimore Chapter of the American Institute of Chemists, and the chemical division of the American International Academy. A large audience of members of both societies plus Loyola students well filled the lecture hall.

Oil Situation Not Serious

Dr. Egloff called ridiculous the assertion that U. S. oil fields will go dry in ten years at the present rate of consumption. "I don't believe we have started to nibble at oil findings either in the U. S. or in this world," he declared.

United Nations Fuel Advantage

Turning to the wartime oil situation, Dr. Egloff pointed out that the United Nations have a tremendous advantage over the Axis in that they control 90% of the world's oil output. He recalled, however, that a great percentage of this oil was destined for war usage, and that there would be increasingly less gas and worse gas for the home front.

He continued to point out new methods developed for catalytic petroleum cracking, and outlined the synthetic rubber situation, which he termed "promising."

Dr. Egloff has written over 500 magazine articles and has published a five volume work on hydrocarbons. He is also an inventor of 300 patents standing.

Dramatists Plan Three New Plays

Three one-act plays will be presented in the early part of December by the Masque and Rapier Dramatic Society. Father Matthew G. Sullivan, S. J., the moderator of the club, has announced that the plays will be produced in the "Little Theatre" in the faculty building.

Two of the plays were written by former students. "Valley Forge", the first of the group was composed by Maurice Mackey, ex '44. "They Shall Not Have Died In Vain", the second drama, was written by Robert Moser, ex '44. The third play is "99 and 44/100% Pure", a comedy. Rehearsals are already in progress. The casts will be published in the next GREYHOUND.

Four new members have been admitted into Alpha Sigma Nu, the Jesuit National Honor fraternity, it was recently announced by President Charles Lerch. Three of the new members were appointed by the Rev. Edward B. Bunn, S. J. president of Loyola. The fourth, of the Sophomore A class, was elected by the society members.

Three Seniors

As seniors, Chartrand, Martin, and Siwinski could not regularly be elected to the society. But in recognition of their services to Loyola, Fr. Bunn made the appointments.

Richard H. Lerch, the fourth new member, is the first sophomore to be elected to ASN in its history. This step was thought necessary because there will be no Junior class at Loyola until January. ASN members are usually taken from students in the last semester of their junior year.

ASN Requirements

Alpha Sigma Nu requires that candidates for membership be outstanding in scholarship, loyalty, and service to the college. Members must be in the upper 25% of their class scholastically. Catholic candidates must have been members of the sodality during each year at Loyola. Membership is limited to 10% of the class.

ASN's purpose is to further the interests of the school in every way, especially by promoting extra-curricular activities.

December 10 has been set as a tentative date for the inductions.

Rev. Joseph A. Donceel, S. J.

Alpha Sigma Nu Elects Officers

The Jesuit Honor fraternity, Alpha Sigma Nu, elected officers for the current year at its annual dinner dance at the Stafford Hotel on October 2.

Charles Lerch, president of the Math Club and Student Council treasurer, is the new president. Joseph Krejci, Student Council and Sodality treasurer, was elected vice-president.

Anthony Leary, president of the senior class and Prefect of the Sodality, was elected treasurer of the fraternity.

On that occasion also Doctor Edward A. Doehler, '30 was inducted into the society as an honorary member. Dr. Doehler is professor of History at Loyola, and also secretary of the Alumni Association.

Father Donceel Presents Course In Philosophy

Evening classes in Philosophy are now being held at Loyola College. The Rev. Joseph A. Donceel, S. J. is the professor of this course which is being conducted solely for adults. At present the course embraces an introduction to Philosophy, but three new subjects will be added with the beginning of the new term in January.

The proposed new subjects are English, Public Speaking and History. The purpose of the course is to prepare adults with the proper orientation for leadership in the post-war world.

Twenty adults, with previous training, are attending the lectures in the library building, and text books from the College library are being used in the course. Some of the members of the present class are adding to credits which they have received from other colleges in the past.

Mr. Paul Betowski, S. J. is the registrar of the new course. The lectures at present are held for two hours duration on Monday evenings, with a ten minute intermission between classes. Seminars will be conducted at specified times. Father Donceel claims that the enthusiasm shown by the new students has been gratifying, and augurs well for the future of the course.

Fall Lecture Series Treats Human Equality

Loyola College is again sponsoring a series of fall lectures. The general subject is, "Problems in Human Equality." The lectures and discussions will be presented on the Sundays of November at 3:30 P. M. in the Loyola College Library.

The first lecture, entitled "Equality in Personal Sovereignty" was given on November 14 by the Rev. J. Hunter Guthrie, S. J., S. T. D., Doctor of the University of Paris, and Dean of the Graduate School, Georgetown University.

Law Trends Discussed

The Rev. Francis E. Lucey, S. J., Ph. D., LL. B., member of the Washington Bar, and Regent of the Law School, Georgetown University, will deliver the second lecture next Sunday, November 21, on the topic, "Recent Trends of Law in America."

Editor to Speak

The third and final talk will be presented on November 28, by the Rev. J. Courtney Murray, S. J., S. T. D., of the Gregorian University and Editor of Theological Studies, Woodstock College. His topic is "Man's Equality in God."

Loyola 'Invaded' By Navy Alumni

W. Alton McCarthy

The week of October 24 found Loyola invaded by an occupational force which consisted of men in the Army, Navy and Marines. This group was made up mainly of former Loyola students who entered the service and are now studying in nearby colleges.

Father Rector has announced that those men who were in last year's sophomore class and who have the required credits will be graduated from Loyola in January as scheduled. The only required subjects which most lack are Ethics and Psychology. These, however, they have been studying at other colleges. Most of the visitors started their training on July 1, and were enjoying a week's vacation before resuming their studies on November 1.

After an absence of almost five months, there was much to be done. There were old buddies to look up and former teachers to visit.

Stories and experiences of service life were related to eager audiences. G. I. haircuts were proudly exhibited. The boys even sat in on some of the lecture classes.

In comparing his present school life with his Loyola days, said one of the Apprentice Seamen, "You could have bowled me over with a feather when I found out what courses I could take. I take History, Psychology, English and Physics. I didn't even have to take Physics but then I thought that perhaps I should take a real interest in what the Navy really wants. The courses are very good, but you can't beat the Jesuits in education."

Said another sailor; "Things are pretty dull. There's nothing to do but get up at six, do 20 minutes exercise, gulp a hearty breakfast, make your bed, police your room, make first class at 8:25, study, eat lunch, study, drill, study, run the obstacle course and study."

New Press Club Social Tonight

The first of a series of GREYHOUND Press Club socials will be held tonight. The party will be held in the recreation room of the gymnasium, and there will be refreshments and dancing. In the roster of the club are all the alumni who were members of THE GREYHOUND staff while students at Loyola.

Robert Chartrand, Editor-in-chief of THE GREYHOUND, is president of the Press Club; Jerome Cardin, business manager of THE GREYHOUND, is treasurer. The Rev. Paul Gibbons, S. J., is moderator of the Club as well as of the paper.

The past members of the staff and all those who are working on the student publication at present have received membership cards of the club.

Brothers Lost In Pacific Area

Chief Electrician Robert Hauber, U. S. N., brother of Rev. Edward Hauber, S. J., of the Loyola faculty, was reported missing in action on October 25. Chief Electrician Hauber was serving on the submarine, Dorado, which was reported lost by the Navy Department. The Dorado was the largest American submarine ever built.

Chief Cook George K. Hauber, U. S. N., another brother of Father Hauber, was reported killed in action at the Battle of Santa Cruz, aboard the U. S. destroyer, Smith, when a flaming Japanese plane crashed upon the deck of his ship.

A third brother of Father Hauber, Mechanic's Mate 2nd class Vincent Hauber, U. S. N., who served on Guadalcanal for seven months, is now at Sun Valley, Idaho, recuperating from wounds received in the South Pacific.

Basketball Teams Coached By Reitz

Athletic Director

Emil G. Reitz, Jr.

Eulogy

For the seventh straight year, Loyola's basketball fortunes rest in the hands of Emil G. "Lefty" Reitz, popular athletic director at Evergreen.

Coach Reitz was something of a star performer in his own right both at Loyola High, where he earned letters in baseball for two years, and at Calvert Hall where he was a triple letter man starring in football, basketball and baseball. In the annual selections, he was twice placed on the All State basketball quint.

Starred at Villanova

After graduation, the present Loyola coach went to Villanova College, where he made the three major frosh teams. In the second year, he won berths on the football, basketball and baseball clubs. His football career curtailed by a college ruling that a student might engage in only two major sports each year, "Lefty" was chosen in his senior year to captain the Wildcat five, and led that aggregation to a successful season.

One memorable meeting between Villanova and St. John's of Brooklyn (which boasted four All-Americans on its roster) saw him tally ten points, only to have the Blue and White bow by a 21-20 score.

Professional After College

Leaving Villanova, the coach played professional baseball for Albany in the International League and pitched a victory over the Philadelphia Phillies in an exhibition game. In 1934 and 1935 he returned to his home city, coaching football and basketball at the University of Baltimore.

At Loyola in 1937

Coming to Loyola in 1937, he led the Greyhound quint out of the doldrums of the Maryland Collegiate League and they finished in third place in his first season as coach. The following year, he was appointed as athletic director, and in 1939-40 a well-earned championship came to Loyola after a long period of drought.

When the M. C. L. was abandoned in 1940 for the Mason-Dixon-Conference, "Lefty's" teams kept up their winning stride and the season before last won the conference crown for the second straight year, capping the regular season by taking three games on successive nights to snare the post-season tournament title.

Inexperienced Courtmen Face Full Schedule

With the opening of the 1943-44 basketball season only two weeks hence, "Lefty" Reitz is worried about the teams lack of practice. Due to conflicts in the schedule of the boys, the team can only practice as a whole one afternoon a week.

Since there are only seven experienced men on the squad, the prospects of a winning season are not very bright. Gene O'Connor and Ed McGarry are the only members of last year's varsity team. O'Connor played regularly, while McGarry was a sub. Up from the "B" squad is "Dutch" Mohler, a basketeer who showed great promise last season. Earl Brannon, a varsity sub of last year, will be lost to the team this year due to his physical condition.

Lacy, Schanberger, Gisriel, and Davis have had experience on Loyola High's championship aggregation. Sal Cammarata and Jerry Cohen have had amateur experience, but have never played high school ball.

Freshman Neil Cole is showing much promise. Having had no previous experience, he is rapidly developing into a court star. Coach Reitz is greatly impressed by this newcomer's performances.

Gene O'Connor, Ed McGarry, "Dutch" Mohler, Jimmy Lacy, Bill Schanberger, Tom Gisriel, Bill Davis, Sal Cammarata, Jerry Cohen, and Neil Cole will probably compose the starting team.

All of Loyola's home games are played in the spacious and modern Alumni Gymnasium, located at the northeast corner of the campus at Evergreen.

Responsibility

Since December 7, 1941 the United States of America together with the other United Nations has waged a war against a common enemy. These common foes have despoiled the homes of the countries they occupy; they have stripped the conquered peoples of their worldly possessions; they have enslaved the bodies and in some cases the minds of these people; they have degraded and sinned against all womankind; they have trampled on the figure of the crucified Christ; in short, they have sacrificed their right to pity from a just victor. Therein lies the difficulty, are we preparing to be just victors over the forces of the enemy?

Certain natural economic phenomena followed our entrance into the war. Underprivileged persons suddenly found fabulous sums in their weekly pay envelopes. The middle class was mystified, and the propaganda dinned in the American ear before a proper perspective could be reached. The upper class was also on the receiving end of very substantial war profits. The boom was on.

What had been happening to the home front and what was the significance of sending these men off to war? Answering the questions in order, the home front supplied the man power, bought war bonds, contributed to various and sundry other sources for boosting the war effort, and settled down to a life on a rationed basis. At the same time the boom was on. Juvenile delinquency, crimes and complaining reached unprecedented heights. The middle class woke up sufficiently to move to other occupations or to strike. Washington was thoroughly damned for being steeped in red tape, the isolationists became Fascist by popular acclamation, and the greater part of the American people were too busy to decide what they were to demand of the post-war world. But the boom was on.

The second question which is posed concerns the men who had been dispatched to the fighting fronts. They had answered a need and the enemy was checked, in some places even driven back. Unfortunately the exigencies of the daily combat to preserve life and limb did not offer them opportunity to plan for the future. So the natural planning for the present and future falls to the Congress of the United States, for all practical purposes.

The problems of delinquency, crime and complaint, the needs of the future, belong to the people. The people must be prepared to demand their right to the solution of these posers because if they remain unsolved and handled otherwise than by the people, the war is lost. The war can be thoroughly lost in the post-war period. The time and place for constructive action is here and now. The men at Loyola are preparing themselves diligently and if the older generation does not shoulder the responsibility, the college student will.

To the Editor of
THE GREYHOUND

Loyola, College, Baltimore, Md.

Dear Sirs:

Many thanks for sending me your extremely interesting THE GREYHOUND. But permit me one exception to an appalling fact you poll on the Punishment of War Criminals. 81% are for not punishing them.

As a veteran of the Austrian army of the first World War, and as an American of 14 years standing I think I have the right of showing you the effect such non-punishment may have on the future of the world.

We fight, today, for Justice and Charity. Justice IS charity, and avoiding a just punishment of criminals as "impossible from a practical point of view" (the excuse of all the impractical) is again "taking the easy way" so justly condemned in the same GREYHOUND.

When the Church punished the German war-monger Henry IV at Canossa, the Church performed Justice. . .

If, in 1918, the then allied democracies had insisted on punishing William II and the Ludendorffs, we would have peace today. The Dutch, today, pay dearly for the unfair protection their queen gave to the head of the military Junkers, and the Swedes regret deeply their having opened their neutral country to give an un-neutral asylum to the deserted Ludendorff, who was to become the chief promoter of Hitler. You see, the German people, then, wanted and expected that the war-criminals who escaped from the German courts, be punished by the allies as those had promised. But these Allies, at Versailles, punished the German people instead, which then, led by Catholics like Prince Max of Baden, Erzberger, Wirth, etc. was full of a sacred fervor for peace, justice, and charity. That is the reason why "the Disgrace of Versailles" was the most potent slogan to rally the German people behind Hitler and the Junkers.

In the same 1918, instead of making a United States of Europe, the Allies dismembered the United State of Austria grown to an organism through seven centuries of Catholic life, only to satisfy a group of power-lusty politicians in "exile." Today these same politicians, again in "exile" (viz; in hiding while their people are tortured by the Gestapo) want to reconstruct the United States of Austria as a "Federation of the Danubes" But, alas, you cannot reconstruct a tree, made by God, once it is felled by men.

It is one of the atavistic superstitions that heads of states are sacrosanct however criminal they may be. But the Christian principle of "all men are born equal" does not exclude kings and fuhrers from moral responsibilities. Yet as long as Christians find it morally excusable that millions of innocents may die for the sins of one demagogue the demagogues will pop up again and again. Only knowing that he will be executed for executing others will prevent him from mounting the soap box. . .

There is no alternative; punishment of the war criminals, or another world war. And you will have to fight it.

Yours with sincerity,

Ernest Lert.

Club News

I. R. C.

Two meetings of the International Relations Club have been held in the past month. Robert Chartrand gave a talk on "Sector Principle vs. Blitzkrieg" on October 18. A paper was delivered by Terrence Burke on the Moscow conference on October 26. There was a convention of several International Relations Clubs of the nearby colleges held on November 13, at Johns Hopkins. Meetings of the club will be held regularly every week.

DEBATING SOCIETY

The Bellarmine Debating Society held a debate with Hopkins on Friday, October 22. Terrence Burke and John Kernan debated for Loyola, and were defeated. Father Sullivan, the moderator, is planning a Speaker's Guild. The best speakers in the society will be selected. They will go to some school or organization, and talk on a topic of current interest.

Scholarship Fund

Elsewhere the reader will find a list of contributors to THE GREYHOUND SCHOLARSHIP FUND. Considering the lapse of time since the former staff first instituted the drive to give some worthy student a means of gaining a Jesuit college education, the list is rather short. On the other hand, the pre-occupation of all of the alumni and friends of Loyola with the all important task of helping to assure a final decision in the war is accountable to a large extent.

It is perfectly clear that many more will contribute to the Fund. It evolves itself to a simple question of taking pen in hand and dashing off a note to the Editor, slipping note and contribution in an envelope, posting the letter and the deed is completed. With the present tax situation and the pressing needs of the government for ready cash to finance the war, it is difficult to make a sizeable donation. Originally the authors of the proposal to establish the fund intended that each alumnus and friend should make some donation and thereby save the burden from any group of persons! That principle still seems feasible. If you have intended supporting the fund, the Editor and staff ask that you do so now. The present amount is sufficient until January and only you can decide whether or not the freshman now studying at Loyola will continue here.

ALUMNI DOINGS

By Edward A. Doehler, '30

New Alumni President

The newly elected President of the Alumni Association greets the members with the following message:

Dear Fellow-Alumni:

It has been suggested that a newly elected President of the Alumni should greet through the columns of THE GREYHOUND those members of the Association who were not present at the election meeting. Fortunately, a candidate for President of this Association does not have to announce a platform. He does not have to promise anything except do what he can to maintain the interest of the membership in its activities and further these activities wherever possible.

Heretofore the main activities of the Association have been an annual election meeting, an occasional smoker or "get together" meeting, the Manresa Retreat, the annual banquet and the Communion Breakfast. These we expect to promote during the coming year. Last year a new feature was added. At the suggestion of some of the alumni an athletic field day was arranged. This was rather an enjoyable event. A number of the younger and middle aged Alumni came out on Sunday afternoon accompanied by their small boys, played tennis, touch football, ping pong, and other games, and enjoyed the use of the swimming pool. It is not known who had the more enjoyable time,—the Alumni or their children. We hope to make this a regular event, perhaps putting it on a monthly basis. It can be done during the winter since the recreation room facilities are available as also is the pool. The second of these athletic events was held on November 7.

On December 3, we open the Alumni Retreat at Manresa. In the past this has been fairly well attended, but not nearly as well as it should have been. After all, forty is not a large percentage of our Alumni membership. True, a great number of the younger men are in the service and a number of older men are so husily engaged in war work that they find it difficult to take off Friday evening and Saturday, but there are undoubtedly a larger number than forty who can make this Retreat. The Retreat objectives need no explanation. The Retreat should have our complete support, particularly in view of the fact that the whole idea of laymen's Retreats in Baltimore originated with the members of the Alumni Association of Loyola College. . .

Sincerely,

Charles C. Conlon, President.

SWINGOLOGY

By Richard S. Clark '44

The first lady of jazz-land is Bessie Smith. On "Lost Your Head Blues", Bessie's ideal blues style is clearly evident. Of particular interest is that she varies the line, "days are lonesome, nights are so long." Another high point of the record is that she "mouths" her words to give a muffled, cloudy effect to her voice, and she points up certain words to intensify their meanings. Bessie did not sing in a soft, sweet voice; on the contrary, when she began to rock, one could feel the tremendous reserve of powerful tone which enabled her to thrust disdainfully aside the microphone when appearing on modern stages. Bessie had timing, feeling, tone variety and sincere emotion.

Ma Rainey was called the "mother of blues", for it was she who taught Bessie Smith and many others to sing. While barnstorming through the South, Ma met most of the great pianists and banjoists as well as many of the pioneer jazz musicians, and these influences are found in her recordings of the 1920's. No one knows how many records she made before retiring in 1933, but "Jazz Information" in the most complete Ma Rainey discography ever assembled, listed 46 records. Ma had a rich quality, a grand style, and an almost masculine depth to her singing. She died December 22, 1939, two years after the death of her most famous protegee, the late Bessie Smith.

Coming up to the present day, we find such singers as Helen Forrest, Connie Boswell, Martha Hilton, Helen O'Connell, Connie Haines, Dinah Shore, Maxine Sullivan (the Loch Lomond girl), Billie Holliday, Mildred Bailey, Lee Wiley and a host of others, who are well known in popular music. Because some of these singers have a distinctive talent as soloists, a bit of their personal life will be revealed.

Mildred Bailey, considered by many as the best white singer, was born in Spokane, Washington. Bing Crosby and Al Ringer (one of Mildred's brothers), were connected with Paul Whiteman who featured Mildred as vocalist in his band. Red Corvo married Mildred in 1933 and she started singing for her husband's band. Since her separation from Corvo in 1939, Mildred worked chiefly with small recording groups although she worked with Bob Crosby for a short time.

Billie Holliday has a more sophisticated and urban manner to her singing than that of Bessie Smith. Possessing a fine blues technique, Billie often applied it to the interpretation of written Tin Pan Alley songs, but occasionally she did make exceptions, an example of which may be found on the record "Billie's Blues".

One of the lesser known vocalists is Lee Wiley. She is known as a night club singer but she did do some chirping with Victor Young's orchestra when he had the Dorsey Brothers, Goodman, Berigan (trumpet), and Bernstein (bass). Lee appeared with Paul Whiteman on the Kraft Show, and also appeared on Saturday Night Swing. Her Rodgers-Hart, Gershwin, and Cole Porter albums are excellent albums for those who want unusual items in the field of recorded show music.

It is now seen that jazz did not grow up under men only, but that it was nursed and helped by a few women who had the courage to believe in hot music. So long, gates, till next issue.

History of Bigotry in the United States by Cutavus Myers. A definite contribution to the understanding of one of America's greatest internal problems is here presented by Mr. Myers. The problem of intolerance and race discrimination has for years been sadly neglected if not intentionally avoided by our national leaders. This situation has allowed many groups in America to create campaigns of racial disturbances and to foster the most bitter and most diabolical bigotry ever conceived. Perhaps the whole situation could be forgotten very easily if we had seen the end of such dangerous work, but we must realize that such work will continue.

In the "melting pot of the world" we would expect to find some disagreement among different peoples, but contrary to popular belief, as Mr. Myers points out, this is not the cause of such bigotry. The cause of it is, however, the desire of certain factions to split the national unity and thus leave the field open to the bigots so that they can introduce their false ideologies into our national government. Naturally the best way to combat this menace is to know the methods of the instigators of bigotry, and to expose them in their true worth. Mr. Myers has very ably done this in his book on American bigotry.

The Twilight of Civilization by

Jacques Maritain. There is probably no one today who will doubt that France is experiencing one of her most horrible defeats in all of her history. In this brief essay of Jacques Maritain's, we find a clear scholarly explanation of the present "crisis of modern humanism," as found particularly in France, and an optimistic prophesy of the destruction of the European ideologies. The typical logic of a Frenchman is clearly evident in this work. However, it is also evident that the fortunes of war were not considered in the forecasting of the renovation of the world's moral beliefs and of a mass return to the true God. The work is especially interesting in its analysis of Nazi and Communist political systems of government and their relation to the winning of the present war.

Come In by Robert Frost. This, the latest of the collected works of one of America's popular poets, has a special appeal to many poetry readers. Mr. Louis Untermeyer has written a biographical introduction and commentary on the poems of Mr. Frost which are included in this edition. The simplicity and freshness of nature has been here captured in the poet's own unique verse. This collection could have easily been called "nature study."

Alumnus Chosen Admiral's Aide

Ensign James R. Crook, USNR, a graduate of the class of '42, was recently appointed to an important post as Communications Officer to an Unnamed Admiral in the Pacific area.

For reasons of military secrecy, the name of the Admiral to whom Ensign Crook is attached was not revealed. His new position puts him in full charge of coding and decoding communications received or sent by his superior.

Now at Pearl Harbor

Ensign Crook is now stationed at Pearl Harbor. Before this latest appointment, he took part in several engagements with the Japanese, the nature of which cannot be revealed. He has received three campaign ribbons for these earlier combats.

Member of THE GREYHOUND

Crook was a member of THE GREYHOUND staff during all his four years at Loyola, and was also a contributor to the Evergreen Quarterly. In his senior year, he was president of both the International Relations Club and the History Academy.

Crook joined the Naval Reserve shortly after graduation, and received his commission a month before being called into the Navy.

He left the August following graduation, and spent eight weeks at the Newport, R. I., Naval Training Station. He was then sent to Pearl Harbor. From Hawaii he was assigned for short periods to several other Pacific islands, before being finally re-assigned to the Pearl Harbor post.

In a recent letter home, Ensign Crook said, "By all means keep on sending that GREYHOUND every three weeks. It's the one real touch I have out here with home and the college."

Editor's Note: A deadline dispatch informs us that Ensign Crook has been promoted to the rank of Lieutenant (j. g.).

REMEMBER?

Freshmen Urged To Join Clubs

At the last Freshman assembly the importance of extra-curricular activities was stressed by Rev. Father Rector and several members of the faculty. The Rev. Edward B. Bunn, S. J., pointed out to the students the importance of these activities. He outlined the opportunities which Loyola offers its students in this field. The class of '45 is the first to participate in the new two year course, and the students will have to keep pace with the course if they wish to obtain all the benefits of college life.

Father Bunn reminded the students that when executives wrote to him for references, they invariably requested information showing how the student had entered into extra-curricular activities.

The Rev. Matthew Sullivan, S. J., spoke for the Dramatic and Debating societies. These are important school activities here at Evergreen. Father Sullivan wishes to have members of the Debating Society prepare a series of talks to deliver to the many parish organizations throughout the city. The Dramatic Society needs candidates to fill the various branches of the organization.

The final speaker was "Toughie" Reitz. "Toughie" graphically emphasized the importance of keeping sports alive at Loyola despite wartime curtailment. He called for increased interest and participation in Loyola's athletic programs.

Student Council Prexy Reveals Special Plans

John Buchness, president of the Student Council, has announced the outcome of the first Student Council meetings of the current year. "It is our wish," he declared, "to make known to all the students just exactly what the Student Council is doing for them. To this end, we will regularly publish in THE GREYHOUND, and on the school bulletin boards, notices of the progress made in Student Council meetings."

"We have had four meetings to date," he continued, "and have discussed and given approval to a number of proposals which are of great importance to every student."

Boxing Proposed

"At our first meeting, Gil Dunn, president of the Athletic Association, proposed a boxing tournament to be held at the school. This proposal was passed on by the Council and action will be taken if an instructor can be obtained and the necessary equipment provided. Gil is now working on the details."

"At the second meeting, a program was inaugurated to make some arrangements regarding the recreation room."

"Of late the recreation room has been closed most of the time. We are trying to arrange having it opened to the student body at all times."

New Campaign

"The Blood Donor Campaign was renewed at our third meeting."

Tony Leary, president of the senior class, was appointed chairman of the campaign committee. The campaign will begin shortly.

"If any student has any proposal to bring up in the Student Council, he should contact one of the following members: Robert Chartrand, Joseph Burton, Richard Klitch, James Lacy, Thaddeus Siwinski, Daniel Silverstein, Donald Giblin, Frederick McCrumh, Gilbert Dunn, Terrence Burke, Joseph Krejci, Charles Lerch, and Anthony Leary."

Loyola Debaters Bow To Hopkins

For the second contest of the scholastic year, the Bellarmine debaters journeyed to Johns Hopkins University. The debate was held at Levering Hall, on Friday evening, October 28. John J. Kernan and Terrence Burke of Loyola upheld the affirmative of the topic: "Resolved: That the United Nations Should Form a Federal Union."

The negative, upheld by King McCubin and David Roseman of Johns Hopkins won the debate by a vote of seven to five. The audience participated by proposing questions to the speakers after the debate. In the first debate of the year, held at Evergreen against Hopkins, Loyola won by upholding the negative of the same question.

Free Press

A. C. P. Release

These modern dictators who have now thrown the world into this bath of blood all began in much the same way. Once they had seized power, they lost no time getting control over the newspapers. In so doing, they proved that they knew their business. They also paid the press the greatest compliment that lay within their power. They acknowledged that a modern dictatorship cannot exist when the press is free. The opposite is also true. Modern democracy cannot exist without a free press.

Americans take this for granted because the whole list of individual freedoms that circulate around freedom of the press have been a part of our political thinking since the foundation of the Republic. Thomas Jefferson saw the place of the newspaper in democracy most clearly of all. He said, "Were it left to me to decide whether we should have a government without newspapers or newspapers without government, I should not hesitate to choose the latter." He meant that a people with newspapers would soon find their way.

The American press is a people's press. Individual newspapers and individual editors may err or abuse their trust. But the free press remains the vehicle of democratic thought and democratic action. It makes democracy possible. It makes dictatorship impossible.
